MDU partners with surgical safety charity

By Maria Davies - 14th July 2021

Medical defence organisation the Medical Defence Union (MDU) has joined with the Confidential Reporting System for Surgery (CORESS) in a new collaboration aimed at improving patient safety. A charity promoting safety in surgical practice, CORESS receives confidential incident reports from surgeons and theatre staff, which are then published as educational tools. It serves all surgical...

Maria has more than two decades' experience as a business and financial journalist. She has specialised in writing about the UK's private and voluntary healthcare sector for the last 15 years. Maria covered the historic 'Condordat' signed by the NHS and independent healthcare providers, which paved the way for the Labour government's radical market-based reform of the NHS at the turn of the Millennium. Since then, she has tracked the key trends in independent healthcare from the advent of patient choice and the emerging NHS market to multi-million pound flotations and game-changing deals.
